

C6 – VIDEO EVIDENCE SHEET

Public Health Assurances vs Crisis Realities

This sheet provides official video links where federal leaders describe public health systems as strong, resilient, or improving.

I. PRESIDENT BIDEN - "SUPPLY CHAINS BACK TO NORMAL"

Context: Economic Club of Washington, D.C. remarks in September 2024.

Claim: States that supply chains are back to normal and the system is strong and resilient.

Use: Contradicted by record national drug shortages, including cancer medicines and antibiotics.

II. HHS SECRETARY XAVIER BECERRA - "PEACE OF MIND" AND WORKFORCE STRENGTH

Context: Senate Finance hearing on the HHS budget.

Claim: Asserts that Americans have "peace of mind" and that the health workforce is being strengthened.

Use: Clashes with data showing over 120 million people in mental health shortage areas and tens of millions lacking primary care access.

III. CDC DIRECTOR MANDY COHEN - "PUBLIC HEALTH WORKED"

Context: Public discussion on the "future of CDC."

Claim: States that public health worked and that the country is better prepared than ever.

Use: Must be weighed against continued high overdose deaths, persistent youth mental health crises, and lagging life expectancy.

IV. FDA COMMISSIONER ROBERT CALIFF - "GOLD STANDARD"

Context: Senate Appropriations hearing on the FDA budget.

Claim: Describes FDA as maintaining the world's gold standard for protecting public health.

Use: Contrasted with ongoing drug shortages affecting basic therapies.

These videos can be linked from the Transparency and Evidence site so viewers can compare official assurances to the government's own outcome data.